HOLDING THE ACES

CHRONICLE REPORTER

SISTERS Jabulile and Phumelele Kubheka could well be South Africa's version of Venus and Serena Williams.

They train at the Wendywood Sports Club weekly and take their tennis very seriously.

Jabulile (16) made the SA National Schools Team, which will tour Italy and Prague from July 2 to July 16. She represented Gauteng Central's Girls U19 team during the SA Schools Week competition.

Jabu, as she is known to friends, earned a second chance to travel abroad.

"Last year I made the girls U15 team, but did not raise enough funds to join. This year I plan to raise the R30 000 needed and gain that international experience," she said.

With the support of the owner of African Star Communications, Farah Fortune she may be well on her way.

Fortune decided to invest in the sisters' futures, having met them through Wendywood Sports Club tennis coach Louis Bolling.

"I saw how much they accomplished this past year. I am blessed to be in a position to assist them, they deserve it," said Fortune.

"Jabu and younger sister Phumelele (12) are SATA/R3 nationally ranked tennis juniors and have moved considerably up the rankings over the last year. Bolling said: "They are improving and, more importantly, understand that discipline, determination, and tenacity are some of the ingredients of success on and off the court. Receiving support from African Star Communications is not something they're entitled to and they must work hard to maintain this."

MAKE A COMPLAINT

Desiré Fembler: I will not be watching the Confed Cup. I don't like soccer, it interferes with my sleeping time because I don't get any attention from my husband.

GIVE A COMPLIMENT

Ngaba Mdhlanshla: will definitely be watching and I hope that Bafana will do well but I think Spain or Italy will take this one because they are the teams currently on from.

SPEAK OUT

Shawn Horstmann: I will definitely be watching the Confed and I think Italy is going to win because they have the best players.
